A REMARKABLE STORY OF THREE bankrupt. The persons to whom he INFERNAL MACHINES IN FRANCE.

Perpetrator.

Paris Correspondence New Orleans Picyune.-A few days since a cabman in Mille was ordered to carry several cases to the addresses pasted on them. The first case bore the address: A Delnestre, 10 Rue des Poster. Thithof the cab-driver carried it, and gave it to Mme Delnestre. It was put on the kitchen table. Monsieur Delnestre took a screw driver and began to open kept watch on her at night, secreting It. He had not given the screw-driver one turn, when a terrible explosion took place, every pane of glass, was broken, the ceiling fell, the neighboring houses shivered, so violent was the shock. Mme. Delnestre, who was on the floor, thinking the house was falling, leaped out of the window, was caught by a workman, but fell on him with such violence she broke his left arm. Mme. and Monsieur Delnestre were more scared than hurt. The box contained dynamite and fragments of iron. The cab driver left the second box at Mons. Trachet's house, Rue de Flandre; he gave it to a servant girl, who put it under a shed in the yard. Mons. Trachet's brother undertook to open it; the wire was slowly removed without difficulty, but he had no sooner tried to pry open the lid than a terrific explosion occurred. Mons Trachet's son, a lad of 15, had his eyebrows and lashes burned, little and fourth fingers of right hand burned, wrist severely cut, arm riddled with wounds. Mons. Trachet's brother had neck severely lacerated, hair, beard, eyebrows wounds, lower jaw bone broken; he fainted while his wounds were dressed. a policeman near by inquired the dihad occurred, arrested the cab-driver, proverb reminds us that searched the cab, found in it four other similar cases, and carried driver, cab and contents to the police station. Each case contained a shell or hollow cast-iron ball nine inches in diameter on the outside and six inches inside, say about one and three-quarter inch thick. They were filled with gun powlike that of a gun fell the instant the sent these infernal machines were his chief creditors, save a woman named Two of Them Explode-Suioide of the Pontoncier, with whom he had been most intimate. Seeing him ruined, she annouced her resolution to break with him and to marry. This infariated him. She had not received the case destined to her. He had repeatedly called at her honse since the perpetration of the crimes, but fearful of imminent unknown peril, she had not answered the knocks on her door, and ing described real estate, situated as OFlo, to-wit:

GEO, DAUM, Sheriff. was ignorant who called. 'Twas well she did so; he was the visitor. He had himself by day behind hedges or in the fortifications' most unt'l he knew he would find her in Leforest market, (Leforest is a village near Donai,) where she sold gingerbread; he went up to her and said: "I failed to kill you in Lille, but since I have got you now I mean to kill you-tale that!" he fired his revolver at her. She fell screaming for help. The ball entered her mouth and went out behind her ear, inflicting a painful, but not a fatal wound. He fled. Chase was given him. Seeing escape impossible, he fired two shots in his temple and fell dead. It was with difficulty the mob was prevented tearing his body to pieces.

In Suffolk, the people say that if after sweeping a room the broom is accidentally left up in a corner, strangers will visit the house in the course of that day while others affirm, in the northern courties, that to sweep dust out of the house by the front door is equivalent to sweeping away the good fortune and happings and lashes burned, face riddled with of the family. Care should be taken to sweep inwards-the dust being carried Saturday, October 29, 1881,
